COACHES' CODE OF ETHICS

Provided by the National Youth Sports association (NYSCA)

I Hereby Pledge To Live Up To My Certification As A NYSCA Coach By Following the NYSCA Coaches' Code Of Ethics:

- I will place my players' emotional and physical well-being ahead of a personal desire to win.
- I will treat each player as an individual, remembering the extensive range of emotional and physical development for the same age group.
- I will do my best to provide a safe playing situation for my players.
- I will promise to review and practice basic first aid principles to treat my players' injuries.
- I will do my best to organize practices that are fun and challenging for all my players.
- I will be knowledgeable in each sport's rules that I coach, and I will teach these rules to my players.
- I will use those coaching techniques appropriate for the skills that I teach.
- I will remember that I am a youth sports coach and that the game is for children.
- I will read the NYSCA National Standards for Youth Sports and do everything in my power to assist all youth sports organizations in implementing and enforcing them.
- If an issue develops on the field or court between coaches, referees, players, and parents, present it to the MCCS Youth Sports representative calmly and professionally. If you prefer, you may prepare a clear and factual written statement to facilitate resolution and or initiate an investigation. If written, you must submit it to Youth Sports within two working days. If we cannot find a solution, Youth Sports will contact military commands, inspectors, or other outside agencies will be notified.

TOUCH POLICY

Effective 30 January 2003 BY MCCS

Physical touching is an essential part of the care and nurturing of children. Children feel loved, accepted, and supported through the sensations of touch by nurturing adults and peers. However, physical contact should be respectful of the children's body cues and only occur with their permission. Employees, contractors, and volunteers must be sensitive to children's responses and requests for physical interaction, model appropriate nurturing touches. Except for safety, a child will always have the right to refuse contact. Please read the following:

Affectionate nurturing touch is vital for each youth's emotional health.

Affectionate nurturing touch includes shaking hands, a pat on the back, and/or a reassuring touch on the shoulder. Youth always have the right to refuse these touches.

Touches for restraint are only used to protect children and staff's physical safety or provide the least restrictive guidance necessary in a given situation. Through modeling and verbal guidance, children are taught to use words rather than physical interaction to settle their differences with others. Touches of restraint should be done as a last resort to prevent a child from injuring him/herself or others. Also, they should not be done in a humiliating or harmful way.

Inappropriate touch has a negative effect on the child. Usually, it involves the exploitation of the child or the satisfying of an adult need at the child's expense. An attempt to change a child's behavior with adult physical force encourages the child to respond in kind.

Examples of inappropriate touch include slapping, tickling, shaking, hitting, kissing, spanking, pinching, picking a child up by his/her arm, fondling, or molestation.
